Harrison in Western Asia

July has been a whirlwind of good things. Katelyn finished her Spring language class and passed! (John passed his at the end of May).

Trip and Raegan turned another year older! We celebrated quietly this year by making their requested meals, having their special desserts, and shopping time to spend their birthday money. Legos and Squish mellowos continue to be their favorites. Our air conditioners were delivered and installed right before the heat-wave hit our part of the world.

Raegan and Rory attended summer camp at a local elementary school. Because of low registration, we had to commute two bus stops to the next school over. What a blessing it turned out to be! We discovered new parts of our neighborhood and familiarized ourselves with the buses! We also met some neighbors from our same building that were attending the same camp!

All three kids started Taekwondo at a gym 3 minutes from our house. The physical workout, repetitive language, and focus on strength and control is just what the kids need right now. They are loving it and thriving! (although their muscles were so sore after the first day they couldn't walk).

We also had a quick 2-day family get away with some friends to a water park! Our experience in this country so far has been so hard, we didn't realize we had begun to associate the whole experience with difficult. It was a blessing from the Lord to see beautiful sunflower fields, experience open car windows on the highway, spend all day speaking English, and go down water slides 10,000 times.

If you have made it this far, thanks for sticking with us! We are so thankful for you all. Tith so much transition, its been difficult to get my thoughts together for an update.
